Telephone Installed.

Bow Island is keeping well to the front in the establishment of modern conveniences. The latest is the telephone, the commencement of the work in connection with the installation taking place this week. A gang of men is now actively engaged in erecting the poles, these being placed in the back lanes and avenues. The work altogether will last from two to three weeks, and when completed some forty subscribers will be connected with this most modern necessity.

The charge for 'phones will be $26.00 for desk, $24.00 for office, and $15.00 for the home.

By the installation of the telephone the citizens of Bow Island display once more evidence of their determination to keep abreast of the times and to make their town really modern.

Next will come the incorporation of the town and election of a mayor and council. Following which the town will undoubtedly take into consideration the question of a water supply, the introduction of natural gas for fuel and light purposes, and other reforms.

Bow Island altogether is a good town for investment and no one can make a mistake on this score.

Information as to
Cost of Gas
Wanted.

Representatives from the towns of Macleod, Grumby, Nanton, High River and Okotoks, met in High River Tuesday afternoon to consider the question of entering into a contract with the Western Canada Light, Heat and Power company, for the supply of the towns named of natural gas for lighting, heating and power purposes. A short time ago the town of Macleod asked the company what arrangements they could make for gas, and the company proceeded to get the other towns into line in order that they might have a circuit of places to supply the gas to. Commissioner Graves of Calgary attended the meeting on the invitation of the towns mentioned, and was asked to enlighten them on the character of the contract Calgary had with the company with regard to length of franchise, price, etc., and to give them other information which would be of value to them should they decide to enter arrangements for a gas supply.

The company wants an exclusive franchise with the towns for a period of twenty years, and wants to fix the price at which the gas will be supplied. The representatives of the municipalities in the proposed circuit expressed the opinion that the gas would be a boon to the towns, but they didn't think the company should have an exclusive franchise for such a length of time. Calgary prices—twenty cents a 1000 cubic feet for power and thirty-five cents for light and heat—are what the company asks the towns for. It also promises them that they will be given every consideration and every advantage that Calgary enjoys.

The representatives of the various municipalities will report to their councils, and a definite decision will be given when the matter has been given fuller consideration.

R. L. Baker was in town on Wednesday.

Political News.

MAKING BORDEN'S CABINET
Ottawa, Sept. 25.—Mr. E. L. Borden spent the latter part of the day at his residence having a rest after his strenuous campaign. It is possible that he may go away for a few days before entering seriously upon the task of organizing his cabinet.

Gossiping as to the make up of the new cabinet is a favorite occupation here at present. The Evening Journal (Conservative) to-night suggests a possibly guess, and it will probably turn out to be correct. It is:

Prime minister, R. L. Borden; finance, G. H. Peley; agriculture, A. Broder; trade and commerce, G. E. Foster or H. B. Ames; railways, Dr. Roche or O. S. Crockett; interior, C. A. Magrath or Dr. Roche; public works, V. Cochran or Dr. Roche; justice, Judge Doherty; marine, L. P. Pollock; fisheries, A. S. Goodere; labor, John Stanfield; customs, A. E. Kemp or G. E. Foster; inland revenue, H. B. Ames or O. S. Crockett; postmaster general, T. Chase Casgrain or C. A. MacDonnell; solicitor general, O. S. Crockett.

PROVINCIAL BY-ELECTIONS.

Edmonton, Sept. 26.—As a session of the provincial legislature is to open about November 1, according to an announcement of Premier Sifton, the by-elections to fill four vacancies in the house will be held in the latter part of October. The resignations of B. B. Bennett, junior member for Calgary, Dr. Warner, member for Pincher Creek, and W. A. Buchanan, member for Lethbridge, have been received, and there is also a vacancy in Gleichen caused by the death of A. J. McArthur to get filled. It is expected that the votes for the by-elections in these four constituencies will be heard before the end of the present week, or next week at the latest. The by-elections thus cannot take place before the latter part of October, as the law requires that nomination day fall not less than sixteen days or more than twenty days after the writ is issued. The election takes place the week after nomination. From twenty-three to twenty-seven days accordingly must elapse from the time the writ is issued until the election is held.

SEVENTY-SIX LAWYERS.

Ottawa, Sept. 25.—Members-elect of the new parliament include no less than 76 lawyers. Other callings will be reported as follows:

Farmers 66, merchants 32, doctors 21, manufacturers 17, lumber men 10, journalists 8, notaries 7, law students 1, labor men 1, live stock exporter 1, stockbroker 1.

If Carriac is elected in Thunder Bay and Rainy River there will be one real estate agent in the house. There are a couple members whose occupation it is difficult to designate.

PROF. A. B. MACALLUM HAS AN INTERNATIONAL REPUTATION.

Toronto University Physiologist Is Perhaps Better Known In Foreign Scientific Circles Than He Is In His Native Land — "First Among Peers" at the Meeting of the British Association at Winnipeg.

Even so recently as a quarter of a century ago, Canada could only boast two of her citizens as worthy to rank with world-wide scientists, Dr. William Dawson of Montreal, in the field of geology, and Dr. Daniel Wilson, of Toronto, anthropologist. While to-day scores of Canadians are to be found figuring prominently in every profes-tion, perhaps the nearest parallel to the great scientific duo above mentioned is to be found in the personalities and life spheres of Prof. A. B. Macallum, physiologist, and Prof. A. P. Coleman, geologist, both associated with the staff of the University of Toronto and responsible for a great deal of her renown as an educational

Prof. Macallum is not only admitted by his own profession to be a great man, an original thinker and an indefatigable worker, but has also been the recipient of the greatest honor fellow-scientists could bestow upon him in that at the last meeting of the British Association, held at Win-

PROF. MACALLUM.

At fifteen, Prof. Macallum was teaching school and after three years at this strenuous business he matriculated at Toronto University, where

He proceeded to the degree of B.A. in 1880, graduating with first-class honors and receiving the medal for Natural Science. Between graduation and 1884 he lapsed into teaching again, but later occupied himself with a post-graduate course at Johns Hopkins, when he began his great active career at his alma mater as Fellow in bilogy, later becoming lecturer and professor in physiology. It is significant of the value set on the man by the university authorities that he had been advanced to the chair of physiology in 1891, only seven years after his enrolment on the staff. He speaks volumes for his capacity as a student and a worker that in the

...he had graduated as M.B. at Toronto and as D.Ph. at Johns Hopkins. Of late years the foremost educational institutions and scientific associations have hastened to do him honor. He was elected Fellow of the Royal Society, London, a rare recognition indeed for a colonial, in 1906, and the same year Aberdeen, Scot-and, made him an honorary LL.D. He was made an honorary D.Sc. of Yale in 1907 and of Trinity College, Dublin, in 1908, while last year he obtained his high official position in the British Association. His full style and title now is Archibald Byrnes Macallum, M.A., M.B., (Tor.); D.Ph., D.Sc., LL.D., F.R.S.

Prof. Macallum is a classic type of the student and the philosopher. He is tall, alert and vigorous of form and his sternest face and calm demeanor bespeak the man who has held close communion with Nature in her innermost secret-places and is therefore not likely to be lightly disturbed by the passing passions of the ment. But masked beneath all is a very human heart, and many a troubled student has received ready help, advice and words of cheer from A. B. Macallum, the scholar and the gentleman.

A House of Commons Ghost.

An interesting history of the House of Commons is given in the following pages. The book is written by a member of the House of Commons, and is a valuable contribution to the history of the House of Commons. It is a book that every student of history should read.

An interesting House of Commons boat is the "Radiant Boy." This child ghost has been many times seen and heard. Its complexion is of the glorious purity of Chinese white, a halo of silver sparkles about its head during its peregrinations, and its eyes beam in their sockets like bright electric lamps. It is evidently in agony, for the palms of its hands are the palms of its hands are stiff and turned downward, and as it paces from room to room it gives utterance to moans of anguish and never lifts its gaze from the floor. So far as can be ascertained, this particular ghost has no pre-spectral history, and why it should have chosen the House for its haunt is a mystery. — London Chronicle.

THE REVER

It Was the Cause of an Abundant Mistake

By Clarissa Mackie

"It certainly has our brand," persisted Gabriel, referring to the solitary red spot in the landscape.

"As well as four other brands," added Jim Lewis.

"Then why does the Widow Clancy lay claim to the critter?" demanded Jim Lewis scornfully.

"She says it's a 'wray,'" explained Harry Barry, "seems her foreman told her that a critter that had as many as four different brands could rightly be claimed by anybody that found it."

"Was the foreman?" asked Gabriel incredulously.

"Peter Henry?"

"He was wondering how he managed to fasten his twisting claws on the widow's many tops."

"She came out pure in health with a young little sun that had been turned to her by Clancy, who was in the building line somewhere east. I don't think she's a 'finger' as they call it."

"That said about her herself out over taking care of Clancy, who fell from the fifth story of a building, and she put him up and lived two weeks after."

"You can imagine what a tough specimen Clancy must have been, and you might know 'twould have been the bones of a woman to skin and bones to take care of a critter."

"The Widow Clancy putted solemnly at his cigarette after this long explanation."

"Herd you come to know so much about the Widow Clancy?" demanded Harry Barry suspiciously.

"I talked with Mrs. Patrick about her, seems Mrs. Ross also been over to call on the widow," said the Crane innocently.

"Anybody seen the widow yet?" inquired Jim.

"There was silence for several seconds, and all eyes turned toward the Crane, who was staring out across the range."

"For the Lord's sake," he broke out immediately, "the confounded critter making off for Stata's gulch! Whoopee!"

"His horse swung around to a quick touch, and before the others could draw breath he was dashing after the red spot, which was gradually becoming smaller. In another instant they were all after him."

"The red better switched her tail snappy and capered joyously ahead of the pursuing creatures."

"Crane," panted Jim Lewis in that guttural gasp when he had caught abreast of him, "you're running the red better of the widow's range?"

"I'm not," cried the Crane, running away, and I'm trying to catch her before she breaks her neck in the gulch."

"Crane turned back across the range, occasionally pausing to blow back an impatient eddying of the wind. He kept explaining in breathless shouts the different brands borne by the better as if all the Lone Bull branders were quailed with the titanic creature's marks of identity."

"The red better had been the pet amusement of all the cattlemen in Puget country for many years."

"Late her sudden appearance among a herd was the signal for a stampede for the branding iron."

"For the time being as the possession of the ranch whose latest brand she bore."

"As these brands were alleged the thick air on her body, they were obliterated as rapidly as her coat lengthened. Where she came from nobody could positively say, but it was believed that she was a wild cow which had joined among the range unknown to the riders."

"Ever since the Three Star ranch, which acquired the Lone Bull on the west, had been purchased by the owner of an instant brand in New York City, the red better had apparently staked a claim on the widow's property, for it milled about her horns and needed constant to remain among the rather wretched lot of cattle which Harry Henry had picked out as his newcow."

"The Lone Bull people had known very little about the Widow Clancy except that occasionally they had been described as a lone brander in the range along the distant ridge on a backskin pony."

"Mrs. Clancy and Tom rode them that the widow was a lone brander, fair, fat, forty and fantastic. 'Also red,' said the boys' wife had added with a twinkle in her eye."

"Not for mine?" Harry Barry had elaborated, and the others had echoed his sentiment. As by one accord they all avoided the Three Star property and the well defined brand on her horns, she marked the relationship between the rainbows was now ridden with several notions' growth of rank."

"Now the spirit of mischief had nudged gently possessed the Three Star, and he had delivered the pursuit effort of the red better that had been previous to the widow's range for several weeks."

"The spirit's horses took fence where there was any, and he was not long before the red better grew to learn proportion to their night air."

til at last Crane's latest went slipping through the air and ripped into curves that astonished him as he saw that the red better was out. Crane had accomplished his task of finding that there was but the one out-shove when the latent lightning of the red better plunged at the other end of the range and belatedly, the men lunged and drew together around the better.

"I reckon you're going to turn her loose in the widow's corral," suggested the better.

"The captor smiled amiably. 'The red better owed to the branding iron to-night,' he said emphatically. 'I had my hands on her for three months. If the Widow Clancy has the conscience to claim this critter with five brands in its crowd, why, she's the widow's meat!'"

"'Ain't been round for some spell,' remarked Gabriel, critically surveying the better.

"'She'll go long tomorrow with an unmistakable brand,' said Crane significantly.

"'Then you're not going to send it back to Mrs. Clancy?' inquired Harry Barry.

"'Not until the Lone Bull man is safe here once more.' And Crane flapped the lines about his horse's neck and moved forward, the other straining to follow him in converse over diverse matters of interest."

"They did not hear the soft tuck of the better's hoofs as it slipped out of the corral, but not a closer, bell-like voice sounded out at hand that they all turned and stared at a girl riding a backskin pony."

"She was unmistakably a pretty girl, the set her horse with careful grace. Her hair was red, and her skin was pink and white, with a powdering of freckles across her nose and cheeks."

"Lipped back on her mass of radiant hair, she did not look back. Her riding skin was not thick but her waist was crisp and white. From the back of her head, her little brown riding boot was a picture to admire."

"The Lone Bull boys gaped and whipped off their hats. Harry Barry remembered for a position close to the backwoods and the better."

"She surveyed the startled group with soft gray eyes that wandered from one to another with friendly interest. At last they alighted on the mildly perturbed face of the red better."

"'What are you doing by my neck?' she asked gently. She looked at Gabriel reproachfully."

"'You better,' repeated Crane stolidly."

"Of course it's mine. I saw you running it off my range. I am surprised I am surprised!"

"This time the old wry, protesting Crane wildly. 'It belongs to whoever brands it. I saw it running away, and she was dashing after the red spot, which was gradually becoming smaller. In another instant they were all after him.'

"The red better switched her tail snappy and capered joyously ahead of the pursuing creatures."

"Crane," panted Jim Lewis in that guttural gasp when he had caught abreast of him, "you're running the red better of the widow's range?"

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Mrs. Pola La Pollette, daughter of Senator Robert M. La Pollette, has written a play with woman suffrage as its theme.

Mrs. Alice Dupont, a fashionable photographer of New York, is the author of the French novel, "The Work of a Woman," which was notable in Paris several years ago.

Mrs. Frances Palmer, the woman member of the municipal council of Stockholm, is said to be responsible for the bold vote of 2,000 which he used in entertaining the coming congress of the International Woman Suffrage alliance in that city.

Mrs. Clarence Burns of New York is president of the Little Mothers' association, which was formed to take care of the little girls who must mind the baby and do the housework while their mothers are out earning a living. The society takes care of the babies for the little mothers and lets them go to school.

Mrs. Francis Blith of Los Angeles, Cal., has served as special police officer at Long Beach for more than two decades. Besides her duties as police officer she is prohibition officer connected with the juvenile court and a member of the Los Angeles Police Association and is a Wesleyan graduate and the daughter of a wealthy family.

The Writers.

Paul Heyne, the German novelist, who won last year's Nobel prize in literature, is recognized as a master of the art in his own language. He has been a writer for sixty years.

The death of Rudyard Kipling's mother, Mrs. Alice Kipling, who was the first wife of the author, is a loss to the world. She was a woman of great energy and success, is still essentially a young man. As a matter of fact, he is only twenty-five years of age.

Edith Wharton, the novelist, was born in New York in 1892 and married Edward Wharton of Boston in 1885. Her first story was published in 1890. Since that time she has written more than fifty stories, and her work has never flagged, more than that of any other woman writer of her time, but records of travel.

Salads.

Shredded potato salad—the kind that comes in a tin—is the appetizer as well as the favor of the apple and celery salad if a dozen are applied and served with it.

In making salads do not chop your greens too fine. The appearance of the salad is important. It is better to cut into the desired sized pieces with scissors. This is quicker, neater and more attractive.

For delicious cheese balls for the salad course select a dry cream cheese, make a ball of butter, add a little milk with it minced parsley, salt, paprika and sugar and form in balls.

Sporting Notes.

McKinnon, Chicago trotting sire, has thirteen performers in the 210 class of the American Trotting Association.

John McRae is "coming back." The New York manager says he will play in most of the series games. Foot racing is popular in South Africa. The 100 yard dash between the two runners, Walker and McKinnon, was a record.

Battling Nelson is planning a trip around the world. He will appear in China, Russia and Japan, as well as in all the English speaking countries.

Tales of Cities.

Chicago has thirty-three church or organizations engaged in outside work for the social and moral development of the community.

The growth of the German city of Frankfurt, now officially estimated at 600,000, has been said to be the result of twenty years as that of any of our western cities.

New York hospital records show a greater proportionate increase in leprosy than in the population. Leprosy cases have more than doubled in the last dozen years.

Cost of Living.

The fact that an egg has the nourishment of a pound of beef doesn't excuse meat prices for eggs—Atlanta Journal.

The cost of living does not come down quite as if both wages were raised and the price of goods were lowered. The cost of living is in the popular beliefs. There is, indeed, no such thing as a free lunch.

The Whisk Broom.

New York's health commissioner says there is death in the whisk broom. Great care should be taken not to swallow it—Toledo Blade.

The health commissioner of New York says that there is death in the whisk broom. Great care should be taken not to swallow it—Toledo Blade.

College and School.

Every pupil in the public schools of Cleveland must have 1,000 cubic feet of fresh air each hour.

Every member of the senior class of the University of Chicago must have a custodian before he is graduated, according to a decree of the board of trustees.

Columbia University, according to the official catalogue, ranks first in the world in the number of students in the university and colleges, for in the present academic year 7,420 students are taking courses in its institution.

THE RIDDLE OF THE FIREFLY.

So Far It Has Baffled Scientists, but When It Is Solved, as It Eventually Will Be, About How Many Fireflies Heat and the Perfect Lamp.

The scientist set down a small black box and impatiently pushed aside the beautiful microscope and the delicate biometer. "It is most discouraging," he muttered, "to have such a treasure before our eyes and still be unable to grasp it."

I looked at the little box, surprised to find nothing but a few brilliant fireflies. The scientist began to explain.

"In the night is the most difficult of luminous known to man. The radiant output from one of these insects compared to nearly fifty watts of electricity, while our very best artificial illuminations, the flaming arc lamp, gives only two or three watts to the candle."

The light from those insects, as compared to the incandescent lamp, is almost negligible. If any heat, the very best incandescent lamp waste more than 90 per cent of the electrical energy it produces. If I could read this secret of the firefly, I could produce 384 candle power from the same current that would produce 384 candle power from the same current."

Local Topics.

Don't forget the Board of Trade meeting on Monday.

S. D. McCrea returned last week from a short visit to Banff.

D. W. Angus returned Tuesday from a trip to Cranbrook, B.C.

Mrs. W. P. Cotton was the guest of Mrs. B. T. Whitney at the river this week.

Mr. and Mrs. S. D. McCrea were visitors to Lethbridge on Wednesday.

On Sunday, Sept. 17, at Medicine Hat, the wife of Geo. Armstrong of a son.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Armstrong returned from Medicine Hat on Thursday.

There will be service at All Saints' next Sunday morning. Holy Communion at 11 a.m.

Birth.—On Saturday, September 23, at Burke's Falls, Ontario the wife of R. Reid, of a daughter.

Mrs. D. G. Ward, of Rosland, B.C., arrived here last week on a visit to her sister Mrs. J. G. Murray.

Mrs. P. E. Ludtke left on Wednesday of last week to spend a few days with friends at Pincher Creek.

H. W. Galpin who has been residing in Medicine Hat, for some time returned to Bow Island last week.

Dr. J. H. Patterson returned from his visit east last week, and was warmly welcomed by his numerous friends.

Mrs. M. Carpenter, of Antler, N.D., is here visiting her son, Leo. She will probably take up land and become a resident here.

Mrs. Tolman, who has been staying here for a time as the guest of her sister Mrs. Whitney, returned home to Montreal on Monday.

James Ojibwa has completed threshing his grain. He reports that his wheat averaged 38 bu. to the acre and his oats 96 bu. to the acre.

With a spirit of co-operation and good-will on the part of its citizens, Bow Island should make some progress from now on.

Tenders will be received for caretaking of the L.O.O.F. hall. The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted. For all particulars apply W. P. Cotton, Review office.

A Board of Trade meeting will be held in the "Review" office on Monday evening next. Business of considerable importance to the town will be transacted and members are particularly requested to attend.

We are glad to notice that elections have left very little bitterness behind them, and with the exception of perhaps one or two that have not taken the result as philosophically as the remainder, the town is particularly free from that unsettled and unsatisfactory condition of things that only too often follows a hotly contested election. We congratulate Bow Island upon this state of affairs.

The Review will publish on October the 14th, an illustrated industrial and agricultural number which will give a complete historical review of the town and district. The number will appear in the form of a booklet, printed on excellent book paper, and handsomely bound. The half-tones are characteristic of the advance of the district and depict better than words, our substantial progress. The Review asks the support and co-operation of every citizen in making this souvenir number a marked success.

THE BOW ISLAND REVIEW.

Published at Bow Island, Alberta. Subscription $1.50. Publisher and Proprietor — W. P. COTTON

The excitement of the general elections having subsided somewhat, it would be well to devote a little attention now to affairs more closely affecting us at home. As yet very little attention has been devoted to municipal matters, and consequently little or no use has been made of the time previous to incorporation by the ratepayers to discuss the advisability of electing some of our citizens to the responsible offices that will shortly be thrown open.

It is necessary, more so than at any other time, for the electors to choose at the birth of a new town their representatives upon the Council with the utmost circumspection. It is always a critical time in a town's history, and by the election of men possessing a thorough business training and a practical knowledge of the work that usually emanates from the Council room much can be saved, both in time and money.

Therefore, we would most strongly urge the ratepayers of Bow Island to consider well the capabilities of a candidate and under no circumstances nominate one who would be unable to fulfil his duties with credit to himself and the town.

In a very short while it will be necessary for us to consider the installation of a water system and devise some method of fire protection. The question of securing the gas in town will also arise and much thought and considerable time will have to be spent upon the preliminary work connected therewith. This, of course, will mean the raising of a considerable sum of money, and whether the sum raised is spent wisely or extravagantly all depends upon candidates that we elect to the positions of Councillors.

J. M. Armstrong, of Walnut, Illinois, has been visiting Dr. Baker for a few days this week.

The town presents a very busy appearance these days, numerous farmers taking advantage of the finer weather to haul their grain into town.

Chas. Avery, who was recently badly hurt by a large barn door falling upon him, was able to get into town on Monday, although still far from being well.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Harris of Bow View ranch, north of town, spent a very enjoyable time as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Whitney at the river last week.

Mr. and Mrs. I. D. James were very pleasantly surprised on Saturday, 16 last, by a large party of friends visiting them. A very pleasant evening was the result.

In the General Election in 1908 there were just 16 votes polled. The vote on this last occasion was 222. This is a big increase and shows how rapidly Bow Island has forged ahead.

There have been a large number of persons in town this week looking for residences. As for most of them are strangers it looks as if Bow Island will register this winter a big increase in its population.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitney's son Thompson left last week to resume his studies at Trinity College, Port Hope. On the same day Miss Isabel left with her mother for a course of study at St. Hilda's College, Calgary.

A number of C.P.R. surveyors were in Bow Island for several days last week surveying a piece of land just out of town and another portion lying between the track and J. W. Hopkins' pre-emption. This last, it is said, will be used for extra truckage.

A private Pullman was put off here last week containing the directors of the Canadian Natural Gas Co. The party drove out to the wells and made a prolonged inspection of the work being undertaken there. They are especially pleased with No. 4, and expressed their astonishment at the gigantic flow registered.

At the Board of Trade meeting held last week it was resolved to suspend for the time being the rule wherein it is stipulated that the Executive Committee only shall be allowed to vote. Every member of the Board, consequently, has the privilege of voting, and the right should be taken full advantage of by all.
